

FOUR BURIED WHEN NEW WALL TOPPLES OVER

Injured Men Are Taken to Hospital and Two Men Are Arrested.

An inside wall of an uncompleted building at East One Hundred and Twenty-second street and Third avenue toppled over this afternoon and buried four men in the ruins. Two arrests have been made, one of the prisoners, Edward Brandt, being charged with having pushed down the wall, which was over a stairway. The injured, who were taken to the Harlem Hospital, are:

Frank Woodensky, of No. 46 Avenue C; contusions on the body and a fractured skull.

Stephen Hussey, of No. 23 East Fifty-sixth street, fractured thigh.

Michael Labodi, No. 75 Baxter street, three ribs broken.

John Bachalk, No. 21 East Third street, scalp wounds and bruises on back.

Capt. Burns, of the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street police station, arrived with a dozen policemen and placed under arrest Joseph Bait, superintendent of the building, of No. 31 West One Hundred and Twenty-second street, and Charles J. Blair, of Richfield Park, N. J. Blair gave the information, which resulted in the arrest of Brandt, whom he said was the real cause of the accident.

ARMOUR A HERO; SAVES CHILD FROM TROLLEY WHEELS

Then Millionaire Washes
Wee Girl's Face and Sends Her Home.

Special to The Evening World.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—J. Ogden Armour, the millionaire banker, essayed the role of a hero to-day and rescued a little girl from being crushed to death under the wheels of a street car at Sixty-third street and Wentworth avenue. Dashing into the street he dragged the child, who was about four years old, from the tracks after she had stumbled and fallen directly in front of the onrushing car, which was not twenty feet away.

Picking the little one up in his arms, the millionaire carried her into the Elgin Bank branch office of Armour & Co., at Sixty-second street and Wentworth avenue. Tenderly the rich man washed the soiled face of his little protegee and smoothed out her ruffled tress.

Mrs. Gatti, manager of the Vaudeville, have given Miss May's part to an understudy.

Cables from London stated that Edna May had left for New York. Belle of Mayfair, the famous Camille Clifford, was engaged to marry Hon. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce, was featured quite equally with that of house.

Miss May reported that they had to advertise Miss Clifford on account of the popular interest in her sudden rise in the British social world.

Miss May went off to Paris in a huff.

RUBE WHISKERS JAR THE RIALTO

Hundreds of Men with Long Hirsute Attachment Mystery Upper Broadway,

"Hai! they are putting a hedge around the Knickerbocker Theatre," exclaimed a Thespian to-day, as he strolled up the Rialto. "Can it be that Mr. Hayman is trying to give the building a rustic appearance?"

The entire front of No. 142 Broadway was hidden behind a thick and luxuriant foliage, from which one expected field-mice and sparrows would peep. But as the foliage seem to move the excited theatrical persons who gathered to view it closed in and discovered that the door could be easily forced through the torn arrangement, since it covered the frontispiece of several hundred men who were crowding into the door.

It was the desire to reach the theatrical offices in the Knickerbocker Building could not do so without using a key cutter. Everywhere the abundant locks were to be found.

An excited policeman who rushed up to demand what the trouble was, got only one answer.

"If you guys ain't Joe Welch standin' in front of a lot of mirrors, tell me what it is!" demanded, grinning his bill.

"Whiskers. Men with wide whiskers," announced the crowd.

After gazing at the Rialto and the many whiskers, he came to Frank Melville's office, whence came the sound of thumping silver. That was the signal for the men to come out, and the whiskers inside was a host of high-class cultivation, bristle and the solution of the mystery.

Melville is preparing for the New York premiere of his new hit at Madison Square Garden Oct. 1 to 2. He wanted a lot of rubes to give local color to the affair, and, therefore, engaged the services of the Rialto. Miss Adams, the whisker Queen, was a host of high-class cultivation, bristle and the solution of the mystery.

WOMAN LACKING TEN CENTS FARE LOCKED IN CELL

Wife of Broker in a Plight at Dawn Handed Over to Policeman.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 24.—Mrs. W. Lawrie Northrup, forty years of age, wife of a prominent insurance broker here, living at No. 31 Morris avenue, in the fashionable section of the city, and prominent in social circles, spent six hours in jail early to-day because she claims she did not have ten cents extra fare demanded by the conductor of a train on the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

Mrs. Northrup, was discharged by Judge Mahon when arraigned in court, failing to appear against her.

According to Mrs. Northrup she was in New York yesterday and visited her daughter, who is in a hospital there.

She started for home intending to take the midnight train on the Pennsylvania Railroad, but missed it.

In her haste to get the train she lost her handbag, but had a small purse in her pocket which contained the return half of the railroad ticket to take city and evening cars to Elizabeth.

On her arrival at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station she learned the train had gone and that the next one would not leave until nearly 6 o'clock, as she decided to return by the night train of the Central of New Jersey. She crossed to Communipaw and there boarded a train, which reached here about 1 o'clock this morning.

When half way to this city the conductor called for the regular fare.

Mrs. Northrup said she only had 25 cents for the regular fare and the conductor refused to accept that, saying she would have to pay the additional fare.

When the train reached here Conductor Ireland called Policeman Shuler and had the woman arrested. Lawrie Northrup, who failed to appear in court, but Ireland failed to appear notwithstanding, he promised to be on hand when the case came up.

CHAUFFEUR IS SENT TO JAIL FOR SPEEDING

Wife of Broker in a Plight at Dawn Handed Over to Policeman.

CITY JUDGE Joseph H. Beall, of Yonkers, who recently committed to a term in jail a New York automobile owner and his chauffeur for injuring three persons, to-day sent another chauffeur to jail. He was Alexander Epling, of Dobbs Ferry, an employee of Theodore Wormser, Jr., the wealthy banker.

Epling admitted having been victed of violating the speed law in New York in addition to which he had been convicted in the Yonkers court, the last time only five days ago. At that time Judge Beall imposed a heavy fine and warned him that he would commit him to jail should he be found guilty again. Mr. Wormser pleaded strongly but vainly for Epling in court.

The sentence for the chauffeur was a $50 fine and term of fifteen days in jail. The case will be appealed. This is the first decision in this country, so far as is known, by which an automobile is sentenced to jail for a violation of the speed law.

The sentence for the chauffeur was a dead man about sixty-five years of age, 5 feet 6 inches in height, gray hair, and beard, wearing a blue plaid jacket, wearing striped trousers, blue stockings, brown socks and black derby hat, was found this morning on one of the benches in Battery Park, near Church street station patrolman.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

An Important Affair In FINE FURNITURE

Very shortly our Furniture Store will remove to the new Wanamaker Building. The approach of this event is the cause of the following announcement.

For ten years our Furniture Store has been on the Fourth floor of the Stewart Building. This floor now commands by right most serious attention.

To fulfill the policy heretofore announced, that the new Furniture Store will begin business with a complete, perfect and new stock, we have assembled

- First—Odd Pieces that Remain from Broken Suites
- Second—Various Suites and Separate Pieces that Are Made from Closed Designs
- Third—Samples and Pieces Made from Experimental Designs
- Fourth—Shopworn or Slightly Damaged Pieces.

This offering of superior Furniture appeals to collectors of quaint and beautiful pieces, to homemakers, to house-hold economists. Bedrooms, Parlors, Libraries, Dens, Dining-rooms, Halls, are all represented so extensively that a house may be furnished entirely with selection that will be complementary altho not en suite.

Prices Are Reduced One-Half

This is simple, actual, real. Any exceptions will be less than half. Prices supply the dynamo for the desired double-quick movement. The case is perfectly reasonable. We give the plain reason why we are anxious to lose money.

Each piece of Furniture in this collection bears a large card which gives original price, reduced price and the following:

The article to which this card is attached is offered at half price to save cost of removal to the new Wanamaker Building. Because of the low price, it is sold "AS-IS," and no claim will be allowed upon any condition of the furniture existing at the time of sale; neither will Exchange or Refund of the purchase price be permitted. Therefore EXAMINE CAREFULLY.

Delivery will be made as promptly as our large but over-tax delivery service will permit. Nothing can be held for future delivery.

Some of the articles are in duplicates. Hundreds are single pieces. If, however, the particular piece you desire is sold before you come, you may yet have choice from a large collection of the same class of furniture.
